TRANSITION WORDS

for example, in other words, that is accordingly, because, consequently, for this reason, since, thus, therefor, if...then accepting the data, granted that, of course in another sense, conversely, despite, however, nevertheless, on the contrary, on the other hand, still, though, yet similarly, moreover, also, too, in addition, likewise, next in importance add to this, besides, in addition to, even more, to repeat, above all, indeed, more important at the same time, likewise, similarly also, besides, furthermore, in addition, moreover, too first, finally, last, next, second, then for these reasons, in brief, in conclusion, to sum up then, since then, after this, thereafter, at last, at length, from now on, afterwards, before, formerly, later, meanwhile, now, presently, previously, subsequently, ultimately

INTENTION OR RELATIONSHIP

Amplification

Cause and Effect

Concession

Contrast or Change

No Change

Emphasis

Equal Value

Increasing Quantity

Order

Summary

Time
ABSOLUTE QUALIFIERS

always never definitely
without exception
must impossible
all
none
everything
only exclusively completely cannot nobody no matter what

GENERAL QUALIFIERS

generally usually frequently seldom
may maybe
on the average rarely sometimes occasionally often perhaps probably